Photo privacy question: A friend is asking about restricting her photos so that friends of tagged friends (that is, FoF) can't see her photos. She finally discovered the checkbox in the Custom dialog for her album's audience selector where, if she unchecks it, friends of tagged friends can no longer see the photo.

However, even after changing this setting in her album, each individual photo in the album still says that friends of tagged friends can see the photo. Is that potentially just stale/wrong explanation text on the individual photo? Or is this whole don't-let-FoF-see-my-photos process really complicated?

Thanks for explaining!
