Creator	David Nichols
Updated	Jan 5, 2015 12:55pm
Description	URL: https://www.facebook.com/settings?tab=applications On the above page, you can click "Apps Others Use" and have some granular control over information about you visible in friends' apps (see attached screenshot). On the same page, under the heading "Apps, Websites and Plugins" (no Oxford comma), you can turn Platform On or Off entirely.

Undesirable user experience: If you set custom privacy under "Apps Others Use" and then turn platform off and back on, your custom privacy settings for "Apps Others Use" are returned to the defaults.

Friend permissions are deprecated and being removed this year - given that, I don't expect we will make changes to how this works. Closing.

Albert Hong: Jan 2, 2015 5:00pm

Apologies, but I'm mass unsubscribing from my tasks. Please resubscribe me if I still need to be on it.

David Nichols: Oct 6, 2014 10:58am

That's fine with me, Chris. It's already a non-whitehat task, so if you want to strip off the #bug tag too, that's cool. I had totally missed the warning verbiage that Albert caught.

Chris Lang: Oct 6, 2014 10:34am

Per Albert's comments below, we are notifying people that this setting gets reset to the default, so this would be more of a feature request than a bug. Your call.

David Nichols: Oct 3, 2014 9:30am

Thanks, Albert. I didn't even read the pop-up window when turning platform on/off! My mistake!

Adam Gross: Oct 2, 2014 5:31pm

Thanks, I know it doesn't exist anymore, I wouldn't have figured Mobile Platform is the owner though :)

Sean Kinsey: Oct 2, 2014 5:30pm

They own all ui's related to auth. Api owns the infra.

Amy Hwang: Oct 2, 2014 5:28pm

oh, does mobile platform own <https://www.facebook.com/settings?tab=applications> ? I got to Jeffrey from phabricator blame for this particular notice.

Sean Kinsey: Oct 2, 2014 5:28pm

Adam, fyi - there is no more Platform UI Infrastructure team, the spoils has been divided between api, mobile platform and devx.

Sean Kinsey: Oct 2, 2014 5:27pm

Amy, this should go to the Mobile Platform team

Amy Hwang: Oct 2, 2014 5:23pm

Jeffrey, is this also something that you would look into?

Albert Hong: Oct 2, 2014 4:13pm

We properly notify you that the "Apps Others Use" will be reset to their defaults (see 'Notice' screenshot). Not a privacy violation, but this does seem undesirable / I feel like this is a product call; there may be a good reason the Platform team does this.

Adam Gross: Oct 2, 2014 2:19pm

Steven or Amy - do you know who would own this?

Adam Gross: Oct 2, 2014 2:19pm

Hmm this isn't a Production Engineering (infra) issue. I'd be inclined to think Platform UI Infrastructure. Sean can you help route this to the owner of the App Settings page?
