Hello Marie,

Following my previous email, we have now put together the attached spreadsheet with all the apps in question.

However, both your list below and the spreadsheet do not include Flipboard, an app we know for sure renders the Newsfeed. Do you know which other API call they may be using that may give them access to the data?

I am worried, we may be missing something here.

If you confirm, this list seems accurate to you, I will start categorizing the apps and come up with a proposal for each vertical.

Thanks a lot,

kp

+Marie who is pulling the list.

I personally like the idea of requiring our ads to be displayed, as well has requiring the feedback on posts are posted back to FB < basically, you have to show our ads if they are in the feed and they have to provide a UFI that likes, comments and shares back to FB. I don't think we need brand uplift.

Doug -

Quick reminder to send the list of folks with newsfeed API access per our meeting.

As a follow up to the meeting, I think that there are three categories of "exceptions" to being cut off: 1) platforms where we want a fb app, but dont want to build it, e.g WP, Blackberry; 2) existing partners with relationship/PR issues with shutting down, ie Flipboard; and 3) partners who we may trade access to for value with the example being Home notification support. In this case, I think that we should impose some conditions for use. Some ideas are:

- 1) very direct links and/or feedback mechanisms (ie likes, comments, check-ins?) back to fb
- 2) prominence of FB
- 3) inclusion of ads, and / or limiting content volume (so that not too much content is viewed w/o ads)
- 4) other?

Interested in thoughts on the above.
