I would also like to pick up your brains on what Sam going to Vernal's org may mean in relation to this exercise.

Heads up, I caught up with Allison today and she is of the opinion that we don't need to change our policies to enforce reciprocity. The interesting thing she mentioned is that she is also putting pressure to Justin to enforce sooner rather than later to Contacts app, especially as they are violating data leakage related policies.

We can talk tomorrow, but I think we should be taking to Justin before we finalize the audit and get his view.

We also need to go back to Sam with this proposal, as I would feel more comfortable to get his buy into this given he is the customer for that.

Thanks a lot,
kp

Follow up to my email from earlier today... Please find attached the list of apps I think we should consider for this audit.

If you think I missed any apps that you know of that fall under those categories, please do add them in the respective tabs.

@Alison, I look forward to touching base in 20 min or so.

Thanks a lot,
kp

Hello Ellen,

All very valid points. I will try to provide some context in case it helps... Unlike platform simplification where the objective is: "We generalized the Platform 3.0 changes (removing non-app friends and stream.get) to a broader pruning of platform to accomplish two things: (1) get it to a manageable # of APIs where we can commit to certain levels of backwards compatibility, bug support, and documentation quality and (2) move API decision-making (and eventual ownership) to the appropriate product teams." to copy Mike's post... this exercise is triggered by an initial review we did for apps in the identity space.

Apps that provide Context like Refresh app, Contacts like sync.me or Reputation like Tinder present a significant overlap with our product roadmap, access sensitive data from the graph without reciprocating and last but not least a few of them are competitive in nature, like LinkedIn.

You are right to say, that we could theoretically kill two birds with one stone when we roll out platform simplification, but at this stage, I wanted to ask for your help and support to uncover any potential competitive threat and if significant enforce sooner.

Let me know if this makes sense,
kp

Thanks for looping me in Michael

Agree with your comments that we should have a clear proposal/recommendation of what we're trying to achieve with this. If it's to inform the breadth of impact to strategic partners, then I think we need to work closely with Eddie on PS12N on understanding if we have product or processes solves, comms plan and migration plan laid out. Can we do this with a light audit? @Michael to determine what that would consist of and what the tradeoff would be to other enforcement efforts we have underway. If we want to take early action on these developers, we would need a strong recommendation of why now and not wait until PS12N for Justin's review. If we want to roll out new policies early and then take action, again, we'd need a strong business case of why now and not wait until PS12N.

I realize I'm coming in late to the thread so apologize if this has already been defined. I'd love to read the 'cliff notes' then 😊

Thx
Ellen

Konstantinos – I'm going to set up time for us to discuss this briefly so I can better provide feedback on the need for any changes and/or clarification of existing policy. Should only need 15min. From there I can provide a response from a policy perspective. Thanks! - Ali

Thanks a lot, Michael.

I am half way through the apps list. I may be able to send it to you earlier than the end of the week after all – so far I have identified 110 apps out of a list of 1,100 I have checked.

At the same time, we have already received feedback from Chris on the plan, but I did not have the chance to synch up with Ime on whether this is in good shape to be shared with Justin just yet. I would like to think we will be able to send the same or an updated version in the new few days to ensure we have his feedback/blessing before we can kick off this exercise.

Looking forward to going through those apps together – some of them are really interesting.

Best,
kp

Hi KP,

Thanks for putting this together! A few notes from our end:

- I'll be your point of contact for the audit moving forward.
- Once we have a list of apps from you, we can determine the timeframe and scale for the audit. If you get the list to us by the end of this week, we can have a workplan for you early next week.
- While we're happy to do this audit to inform strategy/policy interpretation/Unified Review, it might be best to first align this initiative fully with Platform Simplification before we begin. We enforce l.10 sparingly, often only after extensive consultation with Justin on a case-by-case basis. We should probably reach out to him with this proposal before our team begins investing resources in the audit. Not sure who the best POC for this is, but I defer to you, lme, and Ellen.

Let me know if you have any questions. Thanks!

Best,
Michael

Hello guys,

Thanks again for your feedback last week. I have attached our current thinking with regards to the plan – a simplified and cleaner view of what I have previously shared with you . Just fyi, I have also share those with Chris Daniels for his feedback.

At this stage, I wanted to get an idea from you for the timing of the audit. When would be the earliest we can start and who should be the point of contact in the team to help me run this?

I think I can provide the list of apps we should review by the end of the week.

@Ali, if you have some time to look at those slides, could you please let us know if there would be a requirement to change the policies if we wanted to enforce our recommendation to those apps outside platform simplification?

Thanks a lot,
kp
